

Are you an undergraduate student looking for some PAID lab experience?

The Wetlands Biogeochemistry Lab in the Soil & Water Science Department is seeking a hard-working and diligent student who is interested in some hands-on lab experience.

No existing lab experience is necessary (although it is helpful), only common sense.

The Gist:

The work consists of anything from washing glassware, weighing soil samples, making chemical reagents, and running some analyses.

You would be assisting the lab postdoc and graduate students in processing soil and water samples, and the work will be assigned according to your comfort level and experience in the lab.

If you are interested, please contact:

Lilit Vardanyan: lilitvardanyan@ufl.edu

This opportunity has a “first come, first serve” basis and we are trying to fill it ASAP. Please keep your email responses timely or your email silence will be taken as non-interest and your spot forfeit. Please include your name as part of the subject line in your email.